American Art Ideals

Instead of our artists employing their time and talents on such of World, decadent themes as "The Coliseum by Moonlight," "The Dying Legionary" and "A section of Old Bologna," they should occupy themselves more especially with essentially American subjects.

For instance, why bother with the Rhine, the Appian Way and the streets of Cairo, when beyond the Rockies lie Utah and Reno? Why the Vampire when there is available the Umpire? Why Bashi-Bazouks, Salomes, burgomasters, donkey boys, mandarins and Madonnas when there are to be had Pullman porters, southern, industrial workers, hatters, feudists, grafters and pickaninies? Rather than Jupiter and Io, let us have Jawndee and Ida; instead of Theodorus give us Theodore.

From Kensington to Dresden and Salsuma, what more inspiring scenic subject than "The Breakfast Food Canyon at Niagara." "The Billboards of Cincinnati," and "A Proposed Fifty-Story National Capitol after Suggestions by Joseph G. Cannon?" Possibilities in portraiture are "A Cabinet Officer" done in whitewash, or "The Forgetful Magnate," in oil.

Other suggestions are offered: "Sacrifice of Wall Street Lambs," "Birthplace of Tyrus R. Cobb," "Trust President in Stripes," "The Man Higher Up," "New York Policeman Getting His," "American Explorer Discovering the North Pole." (The Pole worked into the background some 300 miles—Owen Hatteras in April Smart Set).

ALCOHOL AND LONGEVITY.

The influence of alcohol upon longevity has now been studied with some thoroughness by physicians and actuaries and some definite results have been gained, although here much work needs to be done. The results show at any rate that alcohol does not increase longevity and hence we have here again no clew to the world-wide desire for it. Robert Mackenzie Moore, actuary of the United Kingdom Temperance and General Provident Institute, in a recent report based upon 60 years' experience of that company in the insurance of the lives of abstainers and non-abstainers (the latter being moderate drinkers and good risks and belonging to the same class and following the same occupations as the former), found that in respect to longevity the abstainers showed a marked superiority over the non-abstainers throughout the whole period of life for every class of policies and for both sexes, however tested. For instance, at the age of 30 the expectation of life for the non-abstainers is 53.1 years; for the abstainers, 58.8 years, a difference of nearly 11 per cent. At the age of 40, the percentage of difference is the same. Another very thorough and impartial investigation has been made by Edward B. Phelps on the mortality due to alcohol. It is based on the testimony of the medical directors of three prominent life insurance companies of America. Mr. Phelps' conclusion is that 8 per cent of all deaths of adults in the United States are due to alcohol—G. T. W. Patrick in Popular Science Monthly.

Nell—She is one of those women who are positively unhappy unless they are miserable. Belle—Yes, she is thoroughly convinced that a thorn in the flesh is worth two in the bush. —Philadelphia Record.

Found wild bird forests of Venezuela, the yakaka, a kind of crane, are readily taken becoming valuable servants to the Indians who domesticate them, says a Indianapolis News. Their power of flight is limited, and they seldom attack any species in the air. Not only are they used with the care of a flock of poultry, but they are the sworn guardians of the back up, and the tribe of the tribe-stuffed birds to the south of the bird because of their ability to do so.
